

Abstract of the Disclosure

A wireless packet stores a plurality of coded words. Each coded word includes user data and an error correction code. Coded word number information indicating the number of coded words stored in the wireless packet, and coding parameter information indicating the coding method used when a coded word is generated are set in the header of the packet.